

I work unusual hours. Until I got on the list in Indiana, I was often awakened several times a day by solicitors. Now I can usually sleep all day. I like the way Indiana's law works and would make it even MORE inclusive if I could.

This is ANOTHER example of the Federal gov't intruding on States' rights.

I really don't care about the people trying to call me's 1st Amendment rights. What about MY right to not have to listen to them? Sure the companies trying to call me probably made HUGE donations to the current administration and I never sent them a dime. So what? Are corporations' and special interest groups' more important than individual citizens'? If they want to contact me, let them spend money on postage and help keep the Postal Service solvent.
